Cancer in Wyoming

Every year, more than 650 Wyoming residents are diagnosed with breast, cervical and colorectal cancers alone.

2016 cancer diagnoses in Wyoming:

Colorectal Cancer

- Total - 225

Breast Cancer

- Total - 411

Cervical Cancer

- Total - 18

Most of these cancers don't have symptoms in early stages, so knowing the risk factors and getting recommended screenings can help find cancer early.

Talk to your healthcare provider about your risk for cancer.

The Wyoming Department of Health complies with applicable Federal civil rights laws and does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, age, or disability in its programs and services.

Cancer Screenings

for Wyoming Residents

The key to life after cancer is early detection.

About the program

The Wyoming Cancer Program reimburses participating healthcare providers for screening services, such as colonoscopies, stool testing kits, mammograms, and Pap tests provided to enrolled clients across the state. The screenings are paid for through funds from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention National Breast and Cervical Cancer Early Detection Program, and the State of Wyoming.
